I don't know how typical my experience with queerness is.

It's a vital part not just of who I am, but how I experience the entire world.

I can't imagine being cis, no matter my physical body.

Whatever my gender, I have no interest in heterosexuality.

Personally, I'm not certain I've ever felt sure of my gender.

It's more in flux -

Something that shifts with my shifting body.

And it can be of many things at once.

It's approximate.

I don't know how typical my experience with queerness is.

It's a vital part not just of who I am, but how I experience the entire world.

I can't imagine being cis, no matter my physical body.

Whatever my gender, I have no interest in heterosexuality.
