

Staying Connected

Not everyone can match. Not everyone can donate. Not everyone can volunteer weekly. But everyone can: Check in on a neighbor. Share verified information. Offer childcare during a meeting. Sign up to be on standby for future actions. Community isn't built in headlines. It's built in follow-through.

If you are not eligible to vote, you can still organize, educate, donate, and mobilize others.

Someone explaining rights in plain language.

Someone translating a form.

Someone sharing a resource at midnight.

Someone showing up to a training after work.

It looks ordinary.

That's the point.

Protection doesn't always look dramatic.

The Quiet Work

Sometimes it looks like:

Funding a legal consultation

Covering snacks for a meeting

Printing Know-your Rights flyers

Paying for gas so someone can attend a training

Community care runs on consistency.

If you've ever asked, "How can I help?" This is part of the answer.

How it started

There wasn't a big launch.
No ribbon cutting.

No press conference.

Just conversations.

Undocumented youth in Indiana were navigating school, jobs, court dates, fear, and isolation largely on their own. So they did what communities have always done when systems fall short.

They found each other.

Much like today.
